Haven't been awarded any scholarships nor grants.

Please share your educational and career goals/aspirations and how you plan to move toward greatness:

My ambitious goal is to attend medical school to become a physician. I aspire to attend Northwestern University to receive not only a prestigious education, but to receive inspiring networks that connect me to institutions that can later be used when I become a physician to help the community I am in to aid in the poverty. By becoming a physician, it enables me to help the minority community which have succumbed to the pernicious effects of systemic racism and the disparities within medicine.

In order to accomplish these goals, I plan on remaining focused no matter what school I attend. Right now in high school, I am intending to graduate with the International Baccalaureate Diploma which demonstrates that I will go the extra lengths for my education and that I can handle rigorous coursework. To strive for greatness is to become an integral part of a community that helps instead of becoming a detriment. I will reach the highest education within medicine by taking advantage of internships, like I am doing now by being a part of Project STEM. I plan to strengthen my leadership by being a much more active member within my clubs and start unifying clubs to reach their own respective goals with much more ease. I also plan to become mentors within whatever institution I plan to go to because I have personal perspective in a wide array of classes and be able to bolster other students chances in their future endeavors.

Overall, I aspire to become a medical physician which allows to become a great asset in a community to help other minorities and to restore the feeling of safety within medicine. I plan to get there by maintaining a hard work ethic and continue to pursue the highest form of education to teach me complex material that can be shared and taught to other people. I also plan to mentor and share my resources with others so they too can thrive. I will also take advantages of experiences that are offered to me to also gain experiences that can be used for other experiences. Striving for greatness requires hard work and persistence, thus I intend to maintain these ethics to keep striving in a greater future and have an integral role that benefits society.
